

HAVE YOU ATTENDED FETAL ALCOHOL SPECTRUM DISORDER (FASD) TRAINING OR PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT?

WE NEED YOUR HELP!

Researchers at Griffith University and The University of Queensland are doing a study to explore the impact of fetal alcohol spectrum disorder (FASD) training and professional development on the current practices of Australian and New Zealand health practitioners.

To help increase knowledge regarding FASD training and assessment practices, your participation is both very important and greatly appreciated. Please note that your participation is voluntary, and you may choose to withdraw at any time.

WHO CAN BE IN THE STUDY?

Australian and New Zealand health practitioners who have completed training or professional development related to FASD assessment

WHAT IS REQUIRED?

Complete an online survey (approx. 15 mins duration) that will ask you questions about the type of FASD training or professional development you have attended and your current practices assessing FASD.

HOW DO I COMPLETE THE SURVEY?

Visit

<https://www151.griffith.edu.au/redcap/surveys/?s=MYR9FEEJPJ>

MORE INFORMATION

For further information on the study contact Dr Wei Liu.

Email: wei.liu@griffith.edu.au

Ethics Reference: GU ref no: 2018/615