

About NOFASD Australia

The National Organisation for Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders Australia (NOFASD Australia) is an independent not-for-profit charitable organisation. NOFASD Australia is the national peak organisation representing the interests of individuals and families who are living with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders (FASD). NOFASD Australia is registered as an incorporated association in South Australia under the Associations Incorporation Act 1985 and has held Health Promotion Charity status since 2007. The Organisation has a large network of individuals and organisations interested in FASD and related issues and is working to further develop its membership base.

Since 1999, NOFASD Australia has lobbied to have FASD recognised as a disability in Australia, to advocate for the rights and interests of people living with FASD and to provide information and support to individuals and families at a grassroots level.

Mission

A strong and effective voice for individuals and families living with FASD.

Our Vision

The prevention of alcohol exposed pregnancies in Australia and an improved quality of life for those living with FASD.

Our work

Since inception, a strong community focus and dedication to the needs of the consumer has been the driving force behind NOFASD Australia activities. We are committed to a whole of population approach to policy and practice.

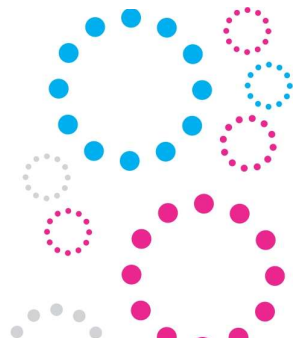

NOFASD Australia has a strong commitment to FASD prevention, demonstrated through the work that we do. This includes, raising public awareness through community education and building the NOFASD Australia support network; offering training to service providers to build their capacity to better respond to target groups who may be at increased risk for alcohol use in pregnancy or FASD; and offering consultation, advocacy and support for individuals and families whose lives are directly affected by FASD.
